

"Local Tokens"

local alternative virtual currency

Database Entity Relationship Diagram

The ledger keeps track of which particular coins were exchanged and who exchanged them.

Each coin has a serial number and keeps track of the current owner

Coins exist in the database as distinct entities, even though users don't see them. In order for a coin to exist, it must be created, thus it's a step away from "creating money out of thin air".